The above diagram represents the high level architecture for our blockchain project when only running with one server. We wrote the UI in react javascript, HTML , and CSS. Then we have our server running kotlin code that serves the static web application. We fetch the data in the react code and once we run our code the web application will render the data in the block.